

As an XM radio subscriber and daily listener I am upset to hear about efforts by the National Association of Broadcasters to squelch XM radio programming. This is a paid service exactly like cable or satellite TV. This is America! XM radio has the right to compete with radio on any level; entertainment, music, news, or traffic reporting. I have chosen to subscribe and listen to XM radio only because of superior programming quality. If radio broadcasters want to compete with XM (as is expected in a free market economy like America!), then they must improve their service and provide programming that will compete.
